privacy terms help about

I decided to do my own take on Craigslist. I changed pretty much everything: the layout, the colors, the style and the font. My site is way less cluttered and generally simpler to use and navigate. It allows you to get straight to what you want with the search field but also with the reduced number of links on the home page. Every link on the home page takes you to a selection page where you can select what you're interested in. Then you submit, and get a list of the options available to you. Each list item features a small description so you don't have to go to the page and later find out you're not interested. Apart from that there are back and forward buttons to ease navigation and you can always go back to your first selection to change your preferences.
